Greetings Students, Faculty and Staff,

As we all continue to adjust our daily lives to cope with the outbreak of COVID-19, we want to remind you that although we’re not physically together, we are still one, big university family.

Because we care about our family, we strongly encourage each of you to practice physical distancing and safe health habits as outlined by the CDC. Community spread of the COVID-19 virus continues to plague our city, our nation and our planet.

The university is currently aware of two UNT Dallas students who tested positive for COVID-19, after our face-to-face classes ended on March 6. Both students began displaying symptoms more than 14 days after their last face-to-face class. Fourteen days is the incubation period of the virus, as stated by the CDC.

To further protect our students, faculty and staff, the university officially closed campus on March 19, and moved all courses to a virtual learning environment. We remind you, please do not come to campus. All of our buildings, both main campus and the College of Law, are officially closed. UNT Dallas Police will not allow access to any buildings.

We continue to keep the health of our two students in our thoughts. We remind all of you to practice physical distancing to help slow the community spread of the virus and help keep all of our families safe.
