Distance Learning & Instructional Technologies (DLIT) Advisory Meeting
Friday, January 30, 2015
University of North Texas – Dallas, Dallas, Texas

Minutes

1. Call to Order: The first meeting of the DLIT Advisory Committee was called to order at 10:05 a.m.

2. Attendees: Walter Borges, Katrina Coakley, Katrina Cornish, Syeda Jesmin, Cynthia Johnson, Pam Harris, Scott Lapinski, Arthur Lumzy, Paula Mason, Brenda Robertson, Nassim Sohaee, Mark Stanley, Larry Terry

3. Welcome/Introduction: C. Johnson welcomed attendees as they introduced themselves and indicated how their expertise and/or department contributes to distance learning.

4. Discussion on implementation of new university policies specific to distance learning syllabus template:

   - Disability Accommodations for Students – Blackboard Accessibility Statement should be included in syllabus along with outside and open source instructional tools, (i.e., TurnItIn, Panapto, Respondus) that may not be fully ADA compliant. New ADA Director will spearhead online efforts, including optional disability accommodations not related to technology.

   - Academic Integrity – TurnItIn is not a plagiarism tool. It tracks exact word matches in assignments submitted to their depository. If instructor uses in Blackboard course shell, statement must be included in syllabus. Instructors should also include statement on additional tools used.

   - Student Code of Conduct – Online “netiquette” should be included in syllabus. Terms “pornography” vs “sexually explicit” and its impact on campus culture and academic freedom were also discussed.

   - Attendance & participation policy – Financial aid’s role in course attendance counts up to the 12th (census) day of each long semester. Accessing Blackboard course shell is not sufficient documentation for online attendance. Online activity must be included to show proof students are in online courses.

   - New online class policies – Class policies are at the discretion of faculty, but additional policy regarding online exams were proposed by Dr. Jesmin.

5. Action Steps

   - W. Borges (Faculty Senate) will have Academic Affairs review proposed wording for online netiquette and academic integrity policy. (See attachment in MS Outlook invite)

   - New ADA Director (Student Life) will review proposed ADA compliance wording to include Blackboard and other online instructional technology tools.

   - S. Lapinski (Financial Aid) and K. Cornish (Registrar) will review proposed wording for online attendance and participation policy. (See attachment in MS Outlook invite)
